So Judge Kimball Lets James Jackson Continue on His Way

Unmolested.

"Ah wants to go back to Virginy, everything in de North am so cold, and mah bones do ache," was the plaintive cry of James Jackson, who says he is from the Sunny South, when arraigned before Judge Kimball, in Police Court, this morning on a charge of vagrance

Jackson was dragged from a freight car as it passed through Washington yesterday. He claimed that he was on his way back to "de Sunny South" after a brief sojourn in the North, where the cold "done give man misery in mah back."

"All right, Jackson, we won't keep you here where you may freeze, you may continue your jeurney." said the judge. And Jackson did continue it without the loss of a second.

Chesapeake Beach is today the Much indignation is expressed by the property owners, residents and occupants of offices, along Fourteenth and H streets and Connecticut avenue, because the Washington Railway and Electric Company finds it is necessary to tear up the new wood block pavement it has just finished laying between the car tracks.

It is explained by Superintendent Moffett, of the traction company, that there will not be much noise with the relaying of the blocks. He explained that they were placed too close together

Picnicking, bathing, boating, crab-bing, and dancing will make up the program of amusements, and many of the excursionists will take the steam the excursionists will take the steamenate noise and dust.

High

We really believe that we have outdone our former efforts in secur-these suits to sell at this price. A manufacturer had promised to work for us during his dull season, and we had followed the trend of style so closely that we were able to select the prettiest advance models by which to have these suits made, and better than all secure several pieces of the latest style materials at a receiver's sale to make these new suits of, and the result is satisfactory in the extreme. You'll say so, too, when you see them.

Later in the season you will not be able to buy as handsome suits at less than $25.00, perhaps not less than $30.00.
